COMPELS HEALER TO PAY DAMAGES

NEW YORK, April 24.—Solomon Raisler, 30 years old, who has been working in a dyeing establishment, was given a verdict of $20,000 damages in Justice Guy's department of the Supreme Court, in his suit against Julius Benjamin, a Christian Science healer, whom the plaintiff blamed for the loss of his left leg. Raisler went to Benjamin to be treated for a sore toe. He understood, he testified, that Benjamin was a regular doctor. The inflamed toe got worse, and at the end of three months another doctor, a licensed surgeon, found it necessary to amputate the limb below the knee. Benjamin charged $3 for the first examination, and $1 each for the daily visits for two months. Benjamin was listed in the city directory for years as a physician, but in his answer he denied he ever held himself out to be a regular physician, and said the only methods he employed to cure Raisler were those of the Christian Science cult. He believed in the efficacy of prayer, and sought to heal Raisler by praying. Raisler testified that Benjamin gave him some medicine.

WILL BUILD FROM MOJAVE TO KEELER

CONSTRUCTION WORK IS NOW BEING VIGOROUSLY PROSECUTED.

Official announcement has been made from the main offices of the Southern Pacific railroad in San Francisco that the company will construct a railroad from Mojave to Keeler, in the Owens valley, says the Los Angeles Express.

As a matter of fact, construction work is now well under way out of Mojave and the section extending to Jawbone canyon will be completed and ready to receive traffic within sixty days.

That the railroad would build the line was generally understood when the board of public works recently awarded it the contract for transporting all supplies and materials for the aqueduct into the Owens valley. There is no railroad farther north than Tehachapi or farther south than Keeler at the present time.

The railroad officials have announced that the narrow gauge road now in operation from Tonopah Junction, in Nevada, south to Keeler, will eventually be converted into a broad gauge road. Later the new Owens Valley road will be used as a cutoff for freight and passengers traveling between Southern California and the East.

SIMPSON WELL KNOWN IN RENO

The Reno Gazette has the following to say concerning Joe Simpson, who was lynched at Skidoo last Wednesday night:

"Simpson was well known in Reno. Several months ago while playing poker with a party of friends at Skidoo, he caught one of the party cheating. In the fight that followed Simpson had his nose and the roof of his mouth shot away. As soon as he was discharged from the hospital he started in search of the man who shot him and cased him for fifty miles across Death Valley. "Last week Simpson was in Los Angeles. While there he related to a friend his experience and vowed that he would never give up the search for the man who had disfigured him.

"It was at first believed Arnold was the man Simpson had vowed to kill, but this is not probable.

"Simpson had made considerable money at Skidoo and was rated as one of the rich men of that district. About six years ago he came to Reno, opened a lunch counter in the rear of the Monarch saloon, and in a year made a small fortune. With this money he went into the mining business, lost it all and again entered the restaurant business in Reno, opening up the old Turtle restaurant. In this venture he failed and moved to Fallon. He went into business there for a few months, after which he drifted into Southern Nevada, was one of the first to get into the Skidoo district, where he again made money very rapidly."
